

A. OBLIGATIONS DURING YOUR EMPLOYMENT

1. Exclusive Service (No Moonlighting)

You are required to devote your complete time, attention, and effort exclusively to Zintlr. You may not, without prior written permission from the Company, take up any other employment, consultancy, or independent business engagement — in any capacity — during the course of your employment. Any violation of this obligation will render you liable to immediate termination.

2. Confidentiality

All information you access in the course of your duties — including but not limited to business strategies, client data, pricing models, software, algorithms, financial records, and employee information — is strictly confidential. This extends to your own compensation details, which must not be shared with colleagues or any person inside or outside Zintlr, verbally or in writing.

3. Intellectual Property

Any invention, design, software, algorithm, process, or improvement you create during your employment that relates to the Company's business belongs solely to Zintlr. You are required to promptly disclose and assign all such intellectual property to the Company.

4. Non-Solicitation & Non-Competition

While employed, you must not solicit or divert any client or business opportunity of the Company, recruit any employee or contractor of Zintlr, or engage with any business that competes with Zintlr's core operations (including data aggregation, sales intelligence, B2B platforms, and predictive analytics).

5. Data Protection

You are required to comply with all applicable data protection laws, including the Digital Personal Data Protection Act, 2023. Any suspected or actual data breach must be reported to the Company immediately.

6. Non-Disparagement

You must not make any false, derogatory, or damaging statements — orally, in writing, or on digital media — about Zintlr, its leadership, employees, clients, or business practices, during or after your employment.

B. OBLIGATIONS AFTER TERMINATION

Please note that several obligations under your Employment Agreement survive the end of your employment, regardless of the reason for separation.

1. Confidentiality (Post-Termination)

Your duty to protect Trade Secrets continues indefinitely after your last working day. For all other Confidential Information, including operational details and critical project information, your obligation continues for three (3) years post-termination.

2. Non-Solicitation of Clients

For three (3) years after termination, you may not solicit or provide services to any client of Zintlr — including those you served during your employment or those solicited by the Company during the two years prior to your departure.

3. Non-Poaching of Employees

For three (3) years after termination, you may not solicit, hire, or induce any Zintlr employee, consultant, or contractor to leave the Company.

4. Non-Competition

For three (3) years after termination, you may not engage with, be employed by, or hold a financial interest in any business that competes directly or indirectly with Zintlr's core business — including data aggregation, AI-driven sales intelligence, B2B marketing platforms, and predictive analytics. This restriction applies globally.

5. Return of Property & Data Deletion

Upon your separation, you will be required to immediately return all Company property (laptops, devices, access cards, documents), revoke all system access credentials, permanently delete all Company data from personal devices and cloud storage, and provide written confirmation that no Company data has been retained.

6. Consequences of Breach

A proven breach of confidentiality obligations will render you liable to pay double the damages incurred by the Company, in addition to legal action. Any damage to Company property in your possession will attract a penalty equivalent to the loss caused.